WILLIAM VAN CLEAVE, M.A.
KEYNOTE SPEAKER

William Van Cleave is in private practice as an educational consultant whose specialties include morphology and written expression. An internationally recognized speaker with an interactive, hands-on presentation style, William has presented on effective teaching practices at conferences and schools both in the United States and abroad since 1995. Recent projects include consulting with three schools as part of a literacy grant in Montana; participating on the MTSS Writing Standards Committee for Pennsylvania; implementing several Trainer of Trainers projects using his sentence structure approach; and writing a series of workbooks and a companion book on developing composition skills to complement his sentence approach. The author of three books, including Writing Matters and Everything You Want To Know & Exactly Where to Find It, as well as a number of educational tools and activities, William has served as a classroom teacher, tutor, and administrator in the private school arena at various points in his career.

WRITING ACROSS THE DISCIPLINES: WHY IT MATTERS AND WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

Students are expected to write in each discipline, but instructors often struggle to develop appropriate and useful writing assignments, scaffold them effectively, and build writing time into their classes. If it is to be effective, writing time must foster the development of student skill, ability, and understanding. In this hands-on, interactive workshop, participants discuss why students, and particularly those who struggle with learning difficulties, need to write across the content areas. They consider effective assignments across the disciplines and consider scaffolding to guide students working at different levels. At each level, they practice with introduced concepts and consider how they can help to develop student skills. Instructors across the disciplines leave this workshop with strategies they can implement the very next day with their students.

JOSH FRANK, Luncheon Speaker
A Life Outside the Box

When Josh was eight years old, doctors told him he would never be able to read, let alone write. Today Josh Frank is a writer, producer, director and composer. He is presently researching his third book and finishing a new screenplay.
